AMENDMENTS TO THE ABSTRACT

Please substitute the following paragraph for the abstract now appearing in the currently filed specification:

-- A computing device including a method of adding to a directory information tree involving the steps of accessing a template name, reading a template according to the accessed template name, the template including structural information of the directory information tree, receiving a first set of attributes from an application program, the received first set of attributes not including a location within the directory information tree, constructing an entry including the received first set of attributes, and a destination location within the directory information, the destination location generated using the structural information, and adding the constructed entry to the directory information tree at the destination location.--